to a real good
kid & classmate and friend. Your a real good athlete in soccer and will be good in basketball because you have height and can shoot & hope you succeed in what ever you try with Nancy & I don't think I'd ask her for a date because you like
her. I hope we will always be friends in school

FAIR RAYMOND WE LOVE THEE . . .

Enter with us, won't you, as we take a long, last look at this, our alma mater. It was here we took our first steps in preparation for adult responsibility. Learning to walk wasn't easy. We often stumbled and sometimes fell, but there was always someone there to help us up and start us on our excursion again down life's educational thoroughfare.

Now suddenly the road is forked. Many paths loom before us, where once there was but one. Each of us must now choose the path he will follow. Such a choice is not easy, for we must leave many friends behind. But as we go our separate ways, we carry with us this lasting pictorial memory of that much-cherished experience - high school.

Dedication

We, the Class of 1964, dedicate our Pynecone to Mr. John J. Callaghan.

An untiring worker, happiest when his students achieve highly, he constantly strives to improve our school and our community.

We could never express adequately enough our respect and, above all, our love for him.

ADMINISTRATION

Superintendent's Message

Not many years ago it was generally believed that physical frontiers had disappeared, that mass methods of production of goods were well established, and that, in general, we were due for a plateau of good but unchallenging life and economy. A recent report states that knowledge has doubled in the last ten years! You know, better than I, that the conquest of space is just beginning, that automation will change the ways of industry in the immediate future. These are only two of the fantastic developments we face.

What is the role of education in the coming era and what will be expected of you as adults? Your guess is probably better than mine, but of one thing I am sure. More important than being a walking encyclopedia of unrelated facts and knowledge will be your abilities to adapt to a fast changing universe, and your skills in knowing how to tackle and solve a problem. Prepare for the unknowns of tomorrow!

C. Maurice Gray
Superintendent

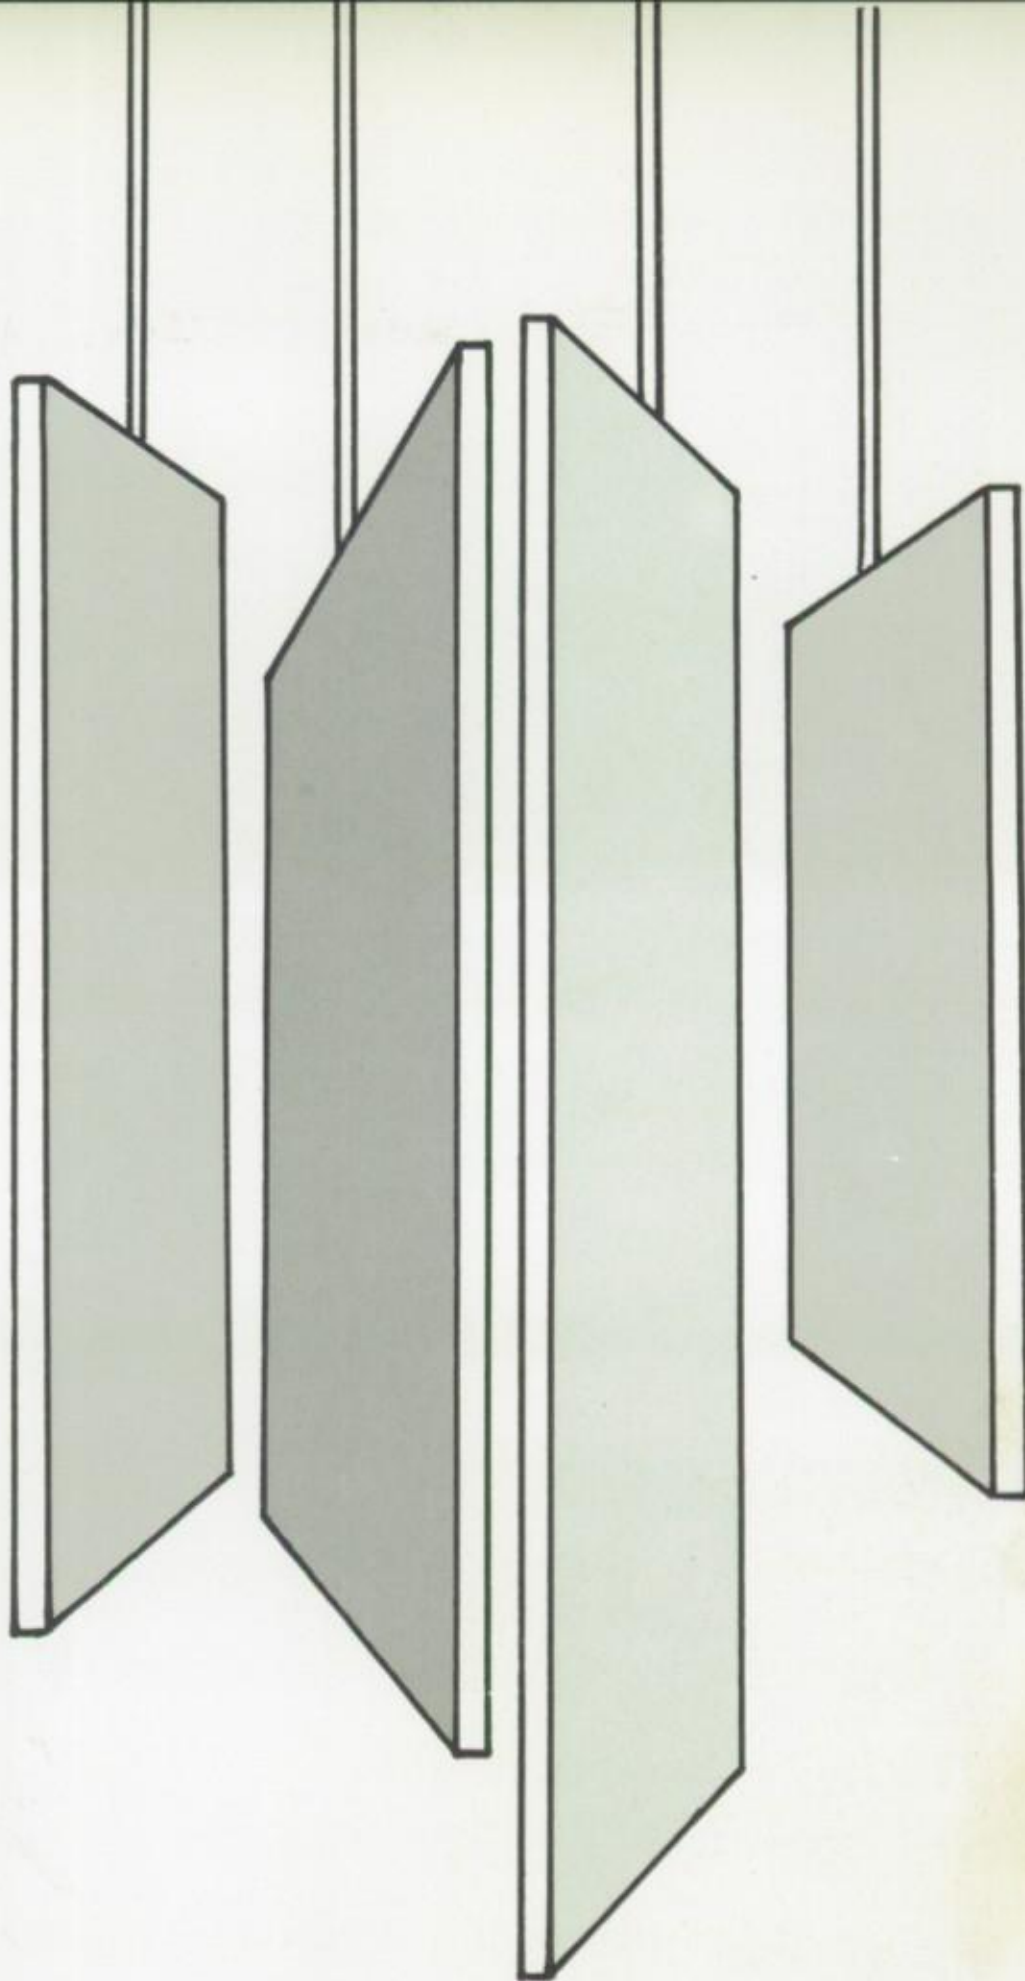

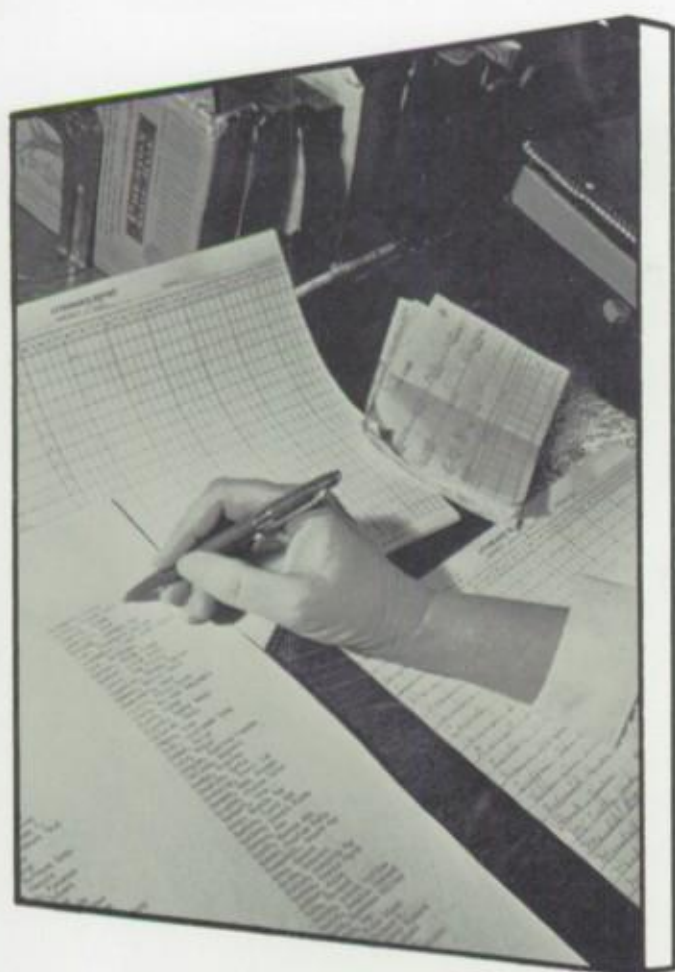

Principal's Message

It is not possible to be just a spectator in the game of life; it is necessary to play the game. Each of us has a role to play, and play it we must, to the best of our ability. Whether this role is major or minor will be determined very largely by the degree to which we develop this ability. In any event, we cannot assume an attitude that is passive. We must take an active part in helping to shape the kind of world in which we intend to live.

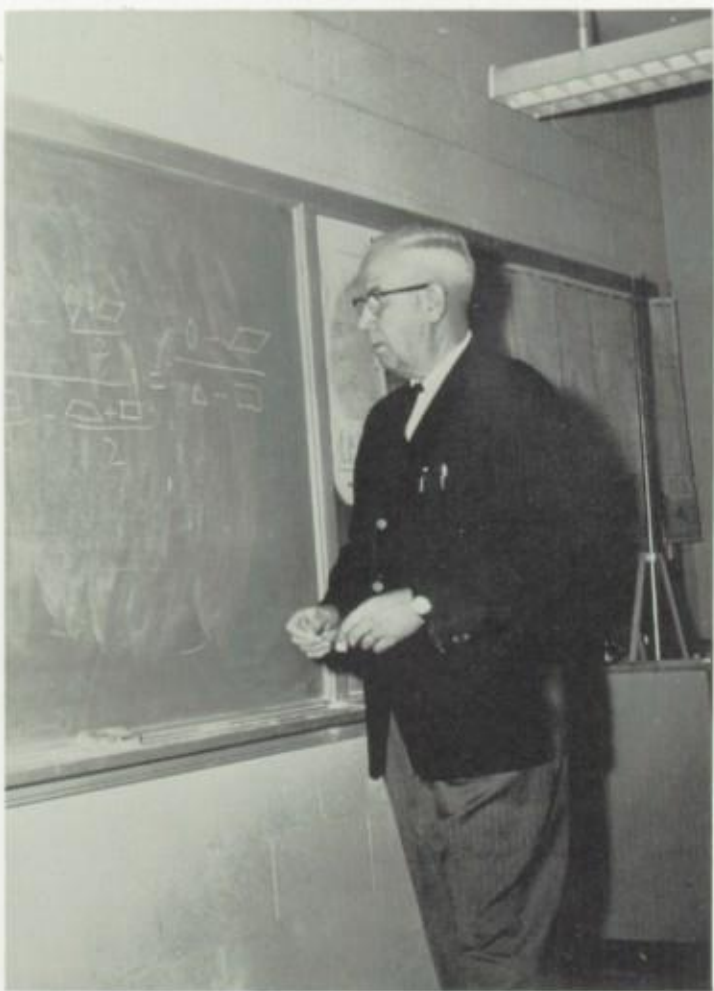

Those who can, do; those who cannot, or will not, sit and complain. This accounts for the difference between living life to the fullest and merely existing. Maybe, someday, someone will stop the world and let the "sitters" get off. However, until that day, the "doers" will have to bear the burden of doing.

My sincere congratulations to a class of "doers."

ACTION SHOTS OF RAYMOND HIGH SCHOOL'S VARSITY BASKETBALL TEAM.

A successful fast break is led by Nick Cenatiempo.

Art Proulx hits on a foul shot.

Chris Kouveliotis exhibits his favorite skill--a driving shot.

Cenatiempo pops a two-pointer from the right side.

George Brown gets set to drive past a Holy Rosary player.

Three opposing players surround Chip Chase, but our Ram gets the elusive sphere.

A FEW OF THE ACTION-PACKED THRILLS
OF THE RAYMOND GIRLS' BASKETBALL SEASON.

Bev Stetson's shot is up and in.

Maureen Daigneau jumps
for the ball, which seems glued to the light.

Robin Welch and Maureen
Daigneau lead a tenacious
defense.

Carol Roberts dribbles into the forecourt.

Robin Welch attempts to complete a three-point play.

The tap is controlled by the Rams'
Kathy Callaghan.

Raymond Consolidated School's History

Through the efforts of a hometown man, Mr. Harry A. White, who served as a member of the School Board of 1917, a campaign to have a high school in Raymond was begun and won the approval of the towns-people. Hardly had Mr. White's dream materialized when the building burned and a great deal of work again had to be done.

A new site was secured and after many months of waiting the new school building was completed. This is the school which stands today on land donated by Stephen K. Batchelder, a leading citizen of Raymond. For a while the building was called The Batchelder School, but it was changed to Raymond Consolidated School when it was decided to locate all grades (1-12) in the same place. This did away with the seven or more district schoolhouses scattered through the town.

The first high school graduation ever held in Raymond was in 1918, when four students were graduated. Then, the following year another class of four was graduated. Its motto was "To Heights Beyond." Its class colors were green and old rose, in contrast to today's green and white.

In 1921, the school paper entitled "The Pynecone" was published for the very first time. This publication today has become the school's yearbook and still bears that name.

By 1929 the school building had increased to eight rooms and its enrollment had expanded to 200 pupils. In this same year Mr. John Littlefield became the school custodian and continued to serve in that capacity for 26 years.

In 1930 the shop building was erected by John Littlefield with the help of pupils. The following year an addition to the main building, which included a cafeteria, was built.

The auditorium was completed in 1939. Nine years had elapsed when space again became a problem. So in 1948 four rooms were added to provide for the ever-increasing enrollment.

In 1959 a new, modern wing was added to house grades 9-12. The older part has since been used solely for the elementary grades and junior high.

Since Mr. John Callaghan took over as principal in 1952 the entire school's enrollment has actually doubled, while its status has climbed tremendously.

The school nurse visits daily and the town doctor is on hand in case he is needed.

There is a hot lunch program taken part in by nearly 300 students.

The school has a highly-accredited academic record. No less than 40% of its graduates go on to some form of higher education.

An a cappella choir has been developed and has received state recognition. Also, a high school band of approximately forty pieces is now in operation under the excellent direction of Mr. Ralph Bowie.

The school's athletic teams have won state championships in all three sports: soccer, basketball, and baseball.

It is easy to see that Raymond Consolidated School has developed from a small country school to the beautiful modern school it is now - a credit to itself and to its community.

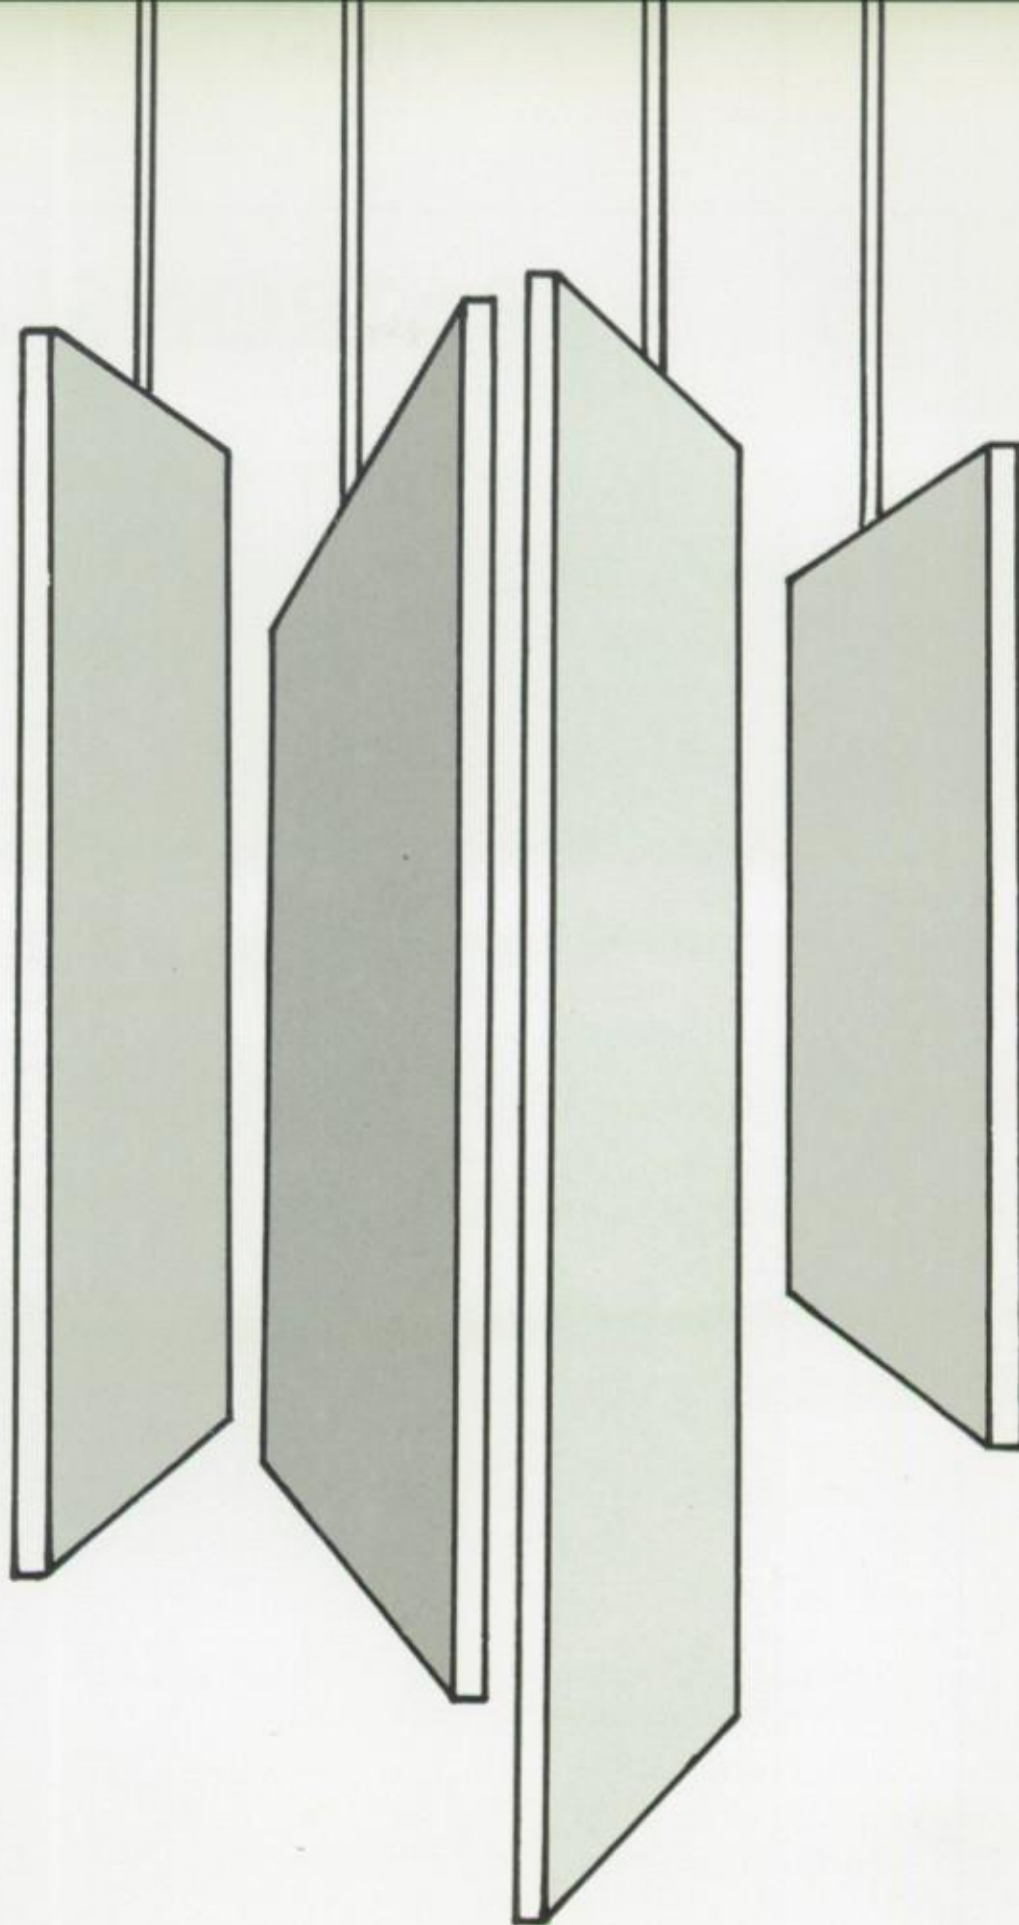

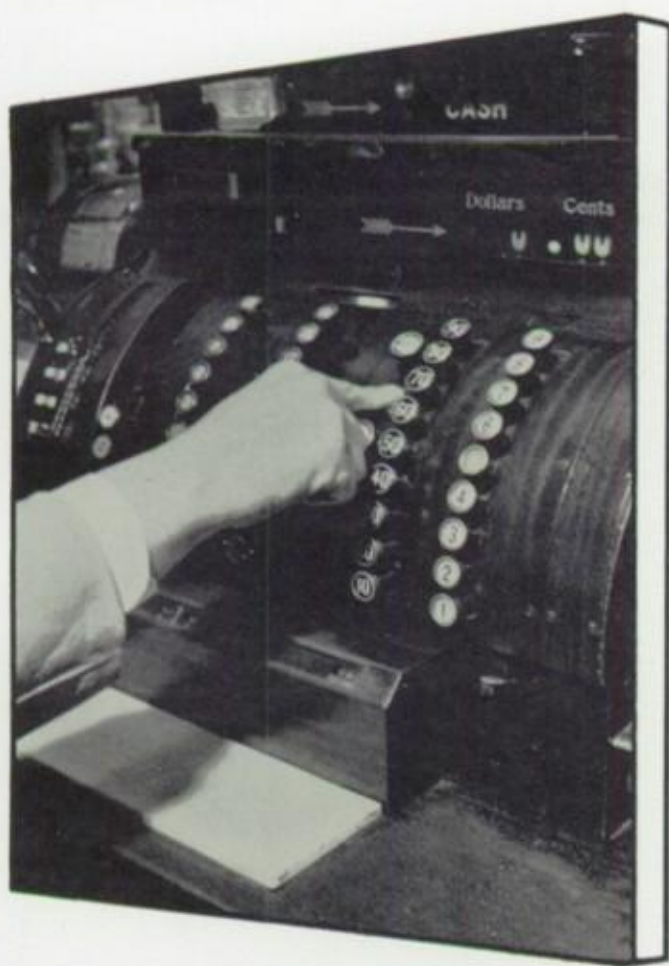

This is the school as it looked in 1918.

This is the school as it looks today. (The high school is in back).

(The material for this history was graciously donated to us by Mrs. Shirley Barnes).
